

Contents

The Word ‘Cancer’	1
Panic and Grace	3
Going, Going, Gone	7
Like Eating an Elephant	9
Herding Clover Mites (and Other Signs of Sociopathy)	11
Like Father, Like Son	14
When Ballerinas Pirouette Around Your Heart	16
Dad 2.0	18
Seventeen Hours and Five Minutes	20
What Happened When You Fell Down on Manchester Piccadilly Concourse Because You Were in Far Too Much of a Rush, and the Guy Who Had Been Sitting Across the Table from You on the 10:25 Helped You Up Because – You Suspect – He Is a Lovely Guy Whom Your Mother Would Love You to Invite for a Coffee So She Has (in Her Words) At Least a Fighting Chance of Being a Grandmother Before the World Tailspins into Oblivion	22
One Thousand and Twenty-Five Contacts	23
’Til Death Us Do Part	25
Learning the Rules	27
To My Beautiful Alien Boy	31
If There Is a Light	34
Below the Eyeline	36
From the First Day to the Last	40
Acknowledgements	45